Sentimental - by Eleesa Howard

Eleesa Howard is an Australian artist living on the Mornington Peninsula with her husband, three children and Alfie the dog. Eleesa's work is autobiographical, it reflects her surroundings which are inspired by the everyday. Drawing inspiration as a mother, daughter, and wife, Eleesa's work is a mixture of memories, dance, shape, colour, and sentimentality.

Eleesa's works are emotionally driven, whether through a childhood memory, the difficulties of parenting or the feelings that are provoked while walking in the natural beauty of the Mornington Peninsula. Her work invites you to connect through the individual human experience, making you feel connected to the work and its individual meaning.

Being sentimental, Eleesa has a love and appreciation for treasured objects, mostly from op shops, or passed down family objects, memories of the landscape or homes that remind her of family. Bold colours, brushstrokes, mark making, and collage are used in Eleesa's work, she is drawn to rich colour, texture, intentional lines, and form.

In this series 'Sentimental' Eleesa's works are about connections and emotions.

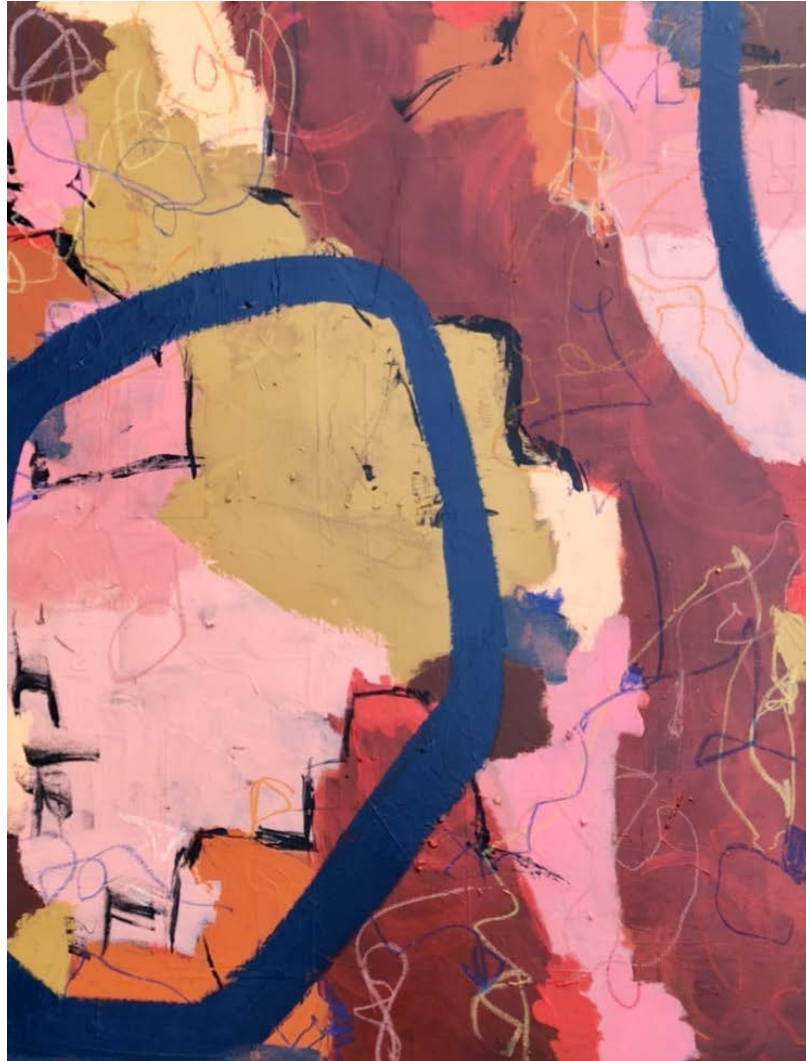

"To say the past year hasn't had its difficulties would be an understatement and that is exactly what this work is about. It's enjoying the small, seemingly insignificant moments in life such as my husband bringing me a cup of tea in bed in the morning, to the emotional process of realizing that my 14year old, who happens to be my baby is growing up, how do I, how can I let go?"

"Memories always make there way into my work, thinking of my beautiful Grandparents every time I see blue hydrangeas and missing them."
